Property description

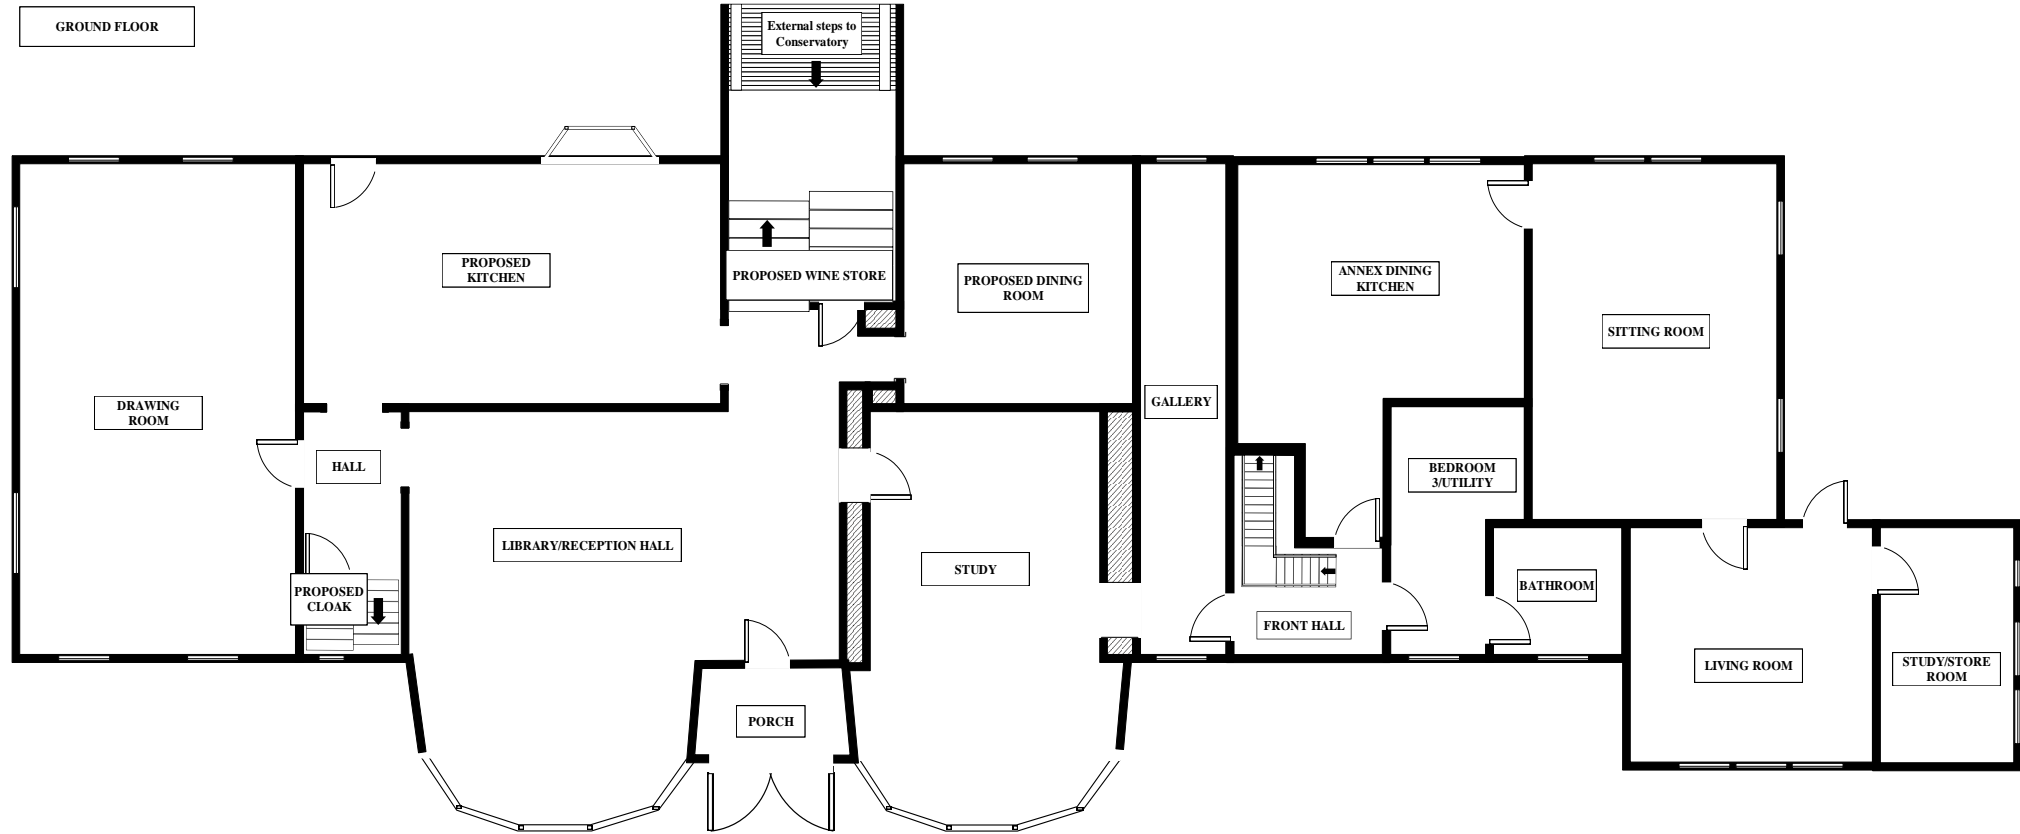

The earliest mention of Merton Hall is a charter granted by James III in 1477, granting the lands to John Kennedy of Blairquhan. The building is Category B Listed and has been considerably extended and altered over the years, previously being occupied as a school. The present owner has completely restored the annex which offers comprehensive living accommodation. The main house offers extensive accommodation over 4 floors and has been partially and sympathetically restored including traditional fireplaces, some original plaster cornices, skirtings and door surrounds (wood panelling to be fitted).

Just 2 miles from the town centre yet situated in a completely rural location the Manor House is approached by a tree lined driveway. The house sits amidst approximately 32 acres of formal gardens, grazing land and mature deciduous woodland. There is a former walled garden within which there has previously been planning consent for a dwellinghouse (Lot 2).

Merton Hall rests in an idyllic location with panoramic views across beautiful open countryside and the Galloway Hills. It sits in parkland to the south of the main A75 Carlisle to Stranraer road, just 1½ miles west of the town of Newton Stewart.

Newton Stewart is an attractive market town and tourist base on the banks of the river Cree, a well known game fishing river. The area is popular for walking, cycling, bird watching, fishing and shooting. Recreational facilities in the town include an 18 hole golf course, swimming pool, cinema, library, bowling green and tennis courts. Being just inland of the peninsula, the coast is easily accessed to the west, east and south.
